Dear Family, Your child is learning to write a story.
 Write a story about something scary that happened to you. Write an opening sentence that will get the reader interested in your story.
 Now write down several events you're going to include in your story.
 Number the events and put them in order that will lead to an interesting ending. Write an ending sentence that repeats what you said in the beginning or says the same thing in a different way.
 Rewrite the story on a separate piece of paper. Read your story out loud to your family. Ask your family to help you think of a good title for your story.
